

BULATS is widely recognised and used by multinational organisations

In Europe

EADS/Airbus (France, Germany, Spain and the UK)

Branches of Airbus and EADS in France, Germany, Spain and the UK use BULATS to evaluate their language training programme.

Italia Lavoro

To improve the employment situation of youth in South Italy, Italia Lavoro initiated an official scheme to provide training opportunities to those unemployed. BULATS benchmarks were adopted in this scheme for English training programme.

In China

Central Personnel Testing Authorities under the ministry of Personnel

The CPTA provides BULATS test service through the network of local PTAs in China

Shanghai Professional Testing Authorities

BULATS is the first international test officially adopted by Chinese local government. BULATS is recognised by Shanghai municipal government and Civil Servants under the age of 40 are required to sit BULATS. Previous BULATS test result is also valid for Civil Servants job vacancy applicants.

Business English Campaign in Hongkong

A Business English Campaign was initiated by Hongkong government to improve the overall English level of employees by funding business English training programmes for employees, so as to strengthen the competitive advantage of Hongkong as an international business centre. Funding decision is based on business English test result, and among those recognised tests, BULATS is the most wide used one.

In Japan

STEP BULATS

STEP BULATS was officially launched in Japan in September 2004 jointly by STEP (the Society for Testing English Proficiency) and Cambridge ESOL (English for Speakers of Other Languages).

HITACHI

BULATS writing test was adopted by HITACHI as its internal evaluation tool for personnel decisions.

In India

Wipro Technologies

Wipro Technologies is one of the world's fastest developing international software service providers. In co-operation with the British Council in India, Wipro tested its staff's business English communication skills with BULATS.
